I'm sure you are all monitoring the news as the lawlessness spreads. The dimensions are likely inflated with weekend warriors turning out to be part of the protests, but the reasonable person in the street (at least the ones I hear from) are getting more concerned that we've lost the ability to restore order.

I think this calls for an emergency caucus meeting to find out where we're at and have a serious look at our options, if indeed there's a need to consider them.
